Principal's Corner

Dear Ten Sleep Families,

Wow, this year is flying by. We have had many wonderful opportunities that students have got to experience this month. We had a Bigs and Littles activity to create veterans cards for Veterans Day. We created over 150 cards. We had a tremendous Veteran's Day assembly and luncheon. Our FFA chapter and volunteers made and served lunch. I was very proud of our students and community. I'd like to recognize Mrs. Kienzle and the Whitlock Family for the awesome afternoon. We also had students attend an Art Intensive at the University of Wyoming, an Honors Band Clinic in Powell, the WASC student council event as well as the FFA Fire Leadership Event to name a few.

FFA from Mrs. Forshee:

The FFA enjoyed a weekend of leadership and learning at our annual FIRE (for Freshmen) and CPC (Chapter Presidents Conference) in Casper. FIRE conference was attended by Allie Griffin, Brooklynn Norman which consisted of leadership workshops which helped our younger members grow and develop in this organization. They participated with over 800 members around their age and engaged in public speaking, team building skills and fun. Matthew Blutt and Bree Jackson represented us at the CPC as they debated in delegate sessions on numerous motions that affect this organization. I am proud of them both as they took on serious issues that could personally affect Ten Sleep FFA and found their voices to raise concerns and speak in front of over 150 of their peers.

The students really enjoyed hearing from Nick "Sunshine" Tokman who starred on the Discovery Channel's Emmy winning Deadliest Catch. He brought a message of "Never giving up, and following your own path".

The highlight for our students was seeing our Kinley Anderson who is serving our State FFA Association as our 2nd Vice-President. I of course am always proud of our Kinley and seeing her grow into a phenomenal leader and public speaker. I enjoyed our ride home as all my FFA students tell me who they met and are excited to have friends around the state.

Our Horse and Livestock Evaluation teams have been hard at it practicing as I have been entering them in virtual contests. I would like to highlight members of our Livestock Team, Bree Jackson and Cachelynn Forshee who continue to lead their teams with precise knowledge of all large livestock animals. Quinlan Greet has been putting in the time it takes as he has skyrocketed up into the standings as well. On our Horse Evaluation team Belle Starbuck has been bringing in the perfect scores finishing up in the AQHA standings.

This December our chapter is planning another community service function as our kids in Blue Corduroy Jackets have the biggest hearts.

Upcoming SkillsUSA Event from Mr. Thoren:

On December 1st, Ten Sleep is hosting the first inaugural Battle of the Basin Welding Competition. For this first year students from Greybull, Shoshoni, Ten Sleep, and Worland are all coming to participate, and we are planning more than thirty different students participating in this competition. The competition consists of three different divisions (Beginner, Intermediate, and Advanced) so that students ranging from Freshman to Seniors are able to compete. Not only will students have the ability to win divisions individually, but each division will also have a school winner and will take home a traveling trophy. We have received tremendous support from local business and industry members who have donated time and prizes towards this competition. Every competitor will walk away with some kind of prize and the winners of each division will walk away with a brand new welding hood. A special thanks to these business and industry members who are making this happen. Norco, Hasco, Big Horn Coop, Worley Welding, Tommerup Machine Shop, Ed and Becky Cooper, McGarvin Moberly, Kienlen Ace Hardware, and Universal Technical Institute were instrumental in making this competition happen.

Study Hall and Rolling Elective:

We have implemented a new twist to our secondary rolling elective that is focused on helping students who have missing work. If a student has two or more missing assignments we are funneling those students to study hall to help them catch up. When they have finished the work needed to complete they return to their chosen rolling elective. Students can also choose study hall as a rolling elective option for their rolling elective. We are excited that we have significantly reduced the number of missing assignments school wide. In addition we have been able to have teachers working one on one with students that need additional help.

Fall Sports Banquet:

We had our annual Fall Sports Banquet and recognized athletes from four varsity sports and two middle school sports. Our football team was recognized as a team for their sportsmanship from the Wyoming Athletics Association. In addition our football team was also recognized for their academic achievement. We had two athletes compete in cross country as part of the Worland Cross Country Team. Each were members of the varsity team and instrumental in Worland earning a 4th place finish at the State meet. Our volleyball team worked hard and significantly improved throughout the season. The golf team had its first ever season and had several high points including winning the first ever Ten Sleep Golf home tournament in Worland. Our top girl's golfer, Kelsie Griffin, finished 3rd overall in 2A State Golf and earned All-State honors. Our boys team was made up of entirely new golfers and finished the season on a high note as nearly every golfer shot their personal best round at State Golf. Our middle school football program finished a nearly perfect season, losing their last contest in a hard fought battle and our middle school volleyball program had a winning record and played well in the conference championship.

High School Art Intensive 2023 from Mrs. Mills

The Ten Sleep High School

Art Intensive was a resounding success for the three talented students who attended. Each had the opportunity to delve into a different art workshop, exploring various techniques and materials.

One student explored ancient art processes such as cuneiform writing in clay and feather quill writing in the Art History workshop, while another got to experiment with ceramic decal collage and collaborative sculpting in the Ceramics workshop. The third student delved into oil painting and yarn carpet tufting in the Painting workshop.

The students learned new skills and had the chance to showcase their creations and receive feedback from peers. Each went home with some of their artwork from the experience. The energy and enthusiasm were palpable, and the shared playlist during the drive there and back kept the mood high.

The 2023 High School Art Intensive marked a new and exciting chapter for the Ten Sleep Art Program. This first-of-its-kind trip opened up a world of creative possibilities for our students and, hopefully, laid the foundation for a long-standing tradition of attending this valuable event. I am proud of the personal growth and accomplishments of those who attended.

Love and Logic

Teens and preteens can be very challenging for parents, compounding the everyday stress that parents feel these days. If you have a preteen or teen, it's very easy to start wondering, and even worrying, about the things they do and how to respond to them. One way to help reduce this stress is to understand the difference between what is and what is not normal behavior. Here's an overview of what you can expect as normal behavior and what behaviors might warrant more concern.

Normal and Developmental Behaviors

- Act like they love things that you don't. Examples are music, values, art, clothes, etc.
- Make a lot of noise with goofy singing, noises, and impulsive outbursts that seem to come from nowhere.
- Are clumsy with their own bodies and things.
- Are extremely fascinated with digital media. Examples include video games, social media, etc.
- Become very upset sometimes when limits are set over digital media.
- Are often moody.
- Experiment occasionally with defiance.
- Want to be independent.
- Make poor decisions occasionally.
- Act like they know everything.

Unhealthy and Problematic Behaviors

- Are openly rebellious in the form of chronic disrespect, drug use, acting out sexually, etc.
- Make a lot of noise with hurtful name calling, arguing, and outbursts that are clearly intended to hurt others.
- Damage property or themselves intentionally.
- Aren't interested in doing anything other than using digital media.
- Become extremely defiant, deceptive, or even violent when limits are set over digital media.
- Are often mean.
- Are almost always defiant.
- Seem to hate being around you or other adults.
- Act selfish and inconsiderate toward the feelings of others. Knowing what's within the wide range of "normal" behavior helps us find more humor and enjoyment during this period of our kids' lives. It also helps us recognize when we might need professional help and allows us to respond in ways that are helpful, rather than ways that damage our relationship and produce rebellion.

Music News

Happy December!

To begin, I would like to thank all those who attended the Veteran's Day Program last month. It was a wonderful program and all the students who performed did so with respect and joy!

Although November just ended, the students in the music room have been hard at work preparing music for the Christmas concert. The Christmas Concert will take place in the Ten Sleep School's gym at 6:00pm on December 14th. This is a K-12 concert so, although it is late, it should be a wonderful opportunity to enjoy some beautiful Christmas music. Please have students K-4 come dressed in Christmas colors or ugly sweaters! All students 5-12 should be dressed in concert black. Santa will also be attending the concert and will be present following the performance for those who want to see him!

I am so grateful for all the enthusiasm I see on a daily basis in the music room and look forward to a wonderful month of December with your children!

Counselor's Corner

Tis' the season for the reason.... Whatever your reason is, showing gratitude and generosity is always in style.

This time of year, offers a wide range of emotions for young and old alike. We have dramatically seen it at the school recently. My position allows me to meet with students, work through a difficult moment, teach strategies and skills for management, and then check back in after a while. Unfortunately, if the client/student isn't willing, my job is very difficult to do. When you work in the industry of humans, the "will" of the human must be accounted for. Recently, while working with students, it occurred to me that adults sometimes need ideas on how to navigate the "will" of their student.

*Validate your child's feelings. So often we are in a rush and forget that they are human and need time to process or "feel" all the feels of a situation. Take the extra second to let your child know that you "see them" and that their emotion or concern is worthy. I find that adults are uncomfortable with big emotions, so we often move on without recognizing what is really happening. This sends the message to your child that emotions and feeling those emotions are not acceptable, thus they stuff their emotions deep down and then the emotions "explode" in the future when you least expect it.

*Just listen. As a parent, you don't always have to solve the problem. Just listen and validate. This could be something like "I see that you are upset....", "How can I help.....", "What do YOU think is a good solution....", "I hear what you are saying....." Be present and in the moment. Time passes so fast and some day you will want those

"awkward moments" back!

*Don't judge. When children hear "You shouldn't feel that way....", or "That's silly....." or anything that you put a label on, judgement takes place. Emotions are so complex. Everyone has their own perspective. Offer something simple like, "I can see how that might bother you...."

*Try to avoid "How does that make you feel.....". Nothing MAKES us feel. If that were the case, then I could magically make people happy all of the time. Situations, circumstances, etc, cause us to have, sometimes, unexplained emotions. Emotions come from inside; our brains and our hearts. Healthy brains allow us to regulate emotions, navigate the tough times, and stay in a manageable state; both the good and the not so good emotions. When our bodies (brains) have a reaction to something (situation, circumstance, event, etc), our emotion happens. Perhaps you have heard of a trigger. As humans, we all have those triggers that send off the alarm, create the emotion, and we have behaviors/emotions that can be intense. Thoughts, emotions, and behaviors are all connected. One might offer that behaviors are under our control whereas emotions are out of our control (because if emotions were under our control, we could just decide to be happy all of the time, which we all know is unrealistic). Emotions do not have an on/off switch.

*Talk! Talk to your child about their day, who they hung around, what they did. If they talk to you about "normal" day to day happenings, they will be more likely to talk to you about the challenging stuff. It is said that one takes on the attitudes and behaviors of those they surround themselves with. The one thing we have control over is our attitude! A change in attitude is a warning sign, so watch for that as your child grows.

Library Corner

The Ten Sleep Library will be closed Dec. 22-25 and Dec, 29-Jan 1, 2024. We encourage all students to visit us throughout the holiday break. The Library is a great place to meet with friends and have a visit, grab a book or DVD, have a cup of cocoa or play a board game in the Nowood Room!
