February 2020

Principal's Corner

We have just started our 2nd semester and we are excited for this New Year and the goals we have set. I am quite proud of all the accomplishments of our students this school year so far and we want to ensure that our students finish the school year strong. We will be recognizing students who have achieved honor roll status and that is always one of my favorite events as it celebrates hard work and achievement of some of our top students.

All schools across the State of Wyoming are working to implement Computer Science Standards that have been adopted by the State Legislation. Schools (including Ten Sleep) are making a big push to get students excited about computer science and to get more students involved as it seems technology is becoming more common in everyday life. Computer science is designed to help students gain skills necessary to be successful in the 21st century. Having read numerous job outlook articles as well as most effective teaching practices, I want to encourage students, with help and support from parents, to take computer science courses here at Ten Sleep as these courses will help prepare our students to live in a digital world. I especially want to encourage our female students to take computer science courses and consider college and job prospectus for females in computer science. Demand is high for everyone (especially females) and enrollment is low for females. As a result, females have excellent scholarship opportunities in computer science. Problem-solving/critical thinking are the main requisite for the computer science industry.

In our policy highlight this month, we would like to highlight Policy 5.19 Sponsorship/Supervision which states the following: No student or students shall be allowed in any part of the school building after 3:30 p.m. or any day that school is not in session, without teacher sponsorship or administration approved supervision. With any school sponsored activity after school hours, the teacher should be the last one to leave the building.

The reason we would like to highlight this policy is because we have had some students forget they need to be accompanied by a teacher/coach or receive approval to be in the building after 3:30 p.m. This tends to happen more often during this time of year and we do not believe there is any bad intention, but students need proper supervision when in the school building. If no supervision or approval is given to a student (e.g. tutoring, athletics, etc.), we kindly request students to exit the building by 3:30 p.m., in order to respect the staff that need to work after hours (without supervision duties) or leave at a reasonable time to be with their families. Thanks for your help and understanding in this matter.

Our High School basketball teams are in the main part of their schedule and we are excited for how they have represented our community. The Boys' basketball team is constantly improving and they are building great character on the court. Thanks for representing us with dignity and hard work Pioneers. The Girls' basketball team has had its ups and downs and they have been doing a great job. They continue to be a lot of fun to watch this season and provide some great entertainment. Our Middle School Boys' Basketball team is also working on building skills and they are getting better as the season progresses. We are happy to have the chance to see all of our Pioneers grow and play on the basketball court. All of our Pioneers are fun to watch this basketball season and we love having your support at the games. Go Pioneers!

We ask that you encourage your students in their school work and get involved in their homework and any other school sponsored activity. Studies have shown that increased parental involvement results in increased student achievement. We know that most parents are already quite involved in the student's school life and any additional time shows in your student's growth.

Thanks for your support in making our school and community a great place to be.
With Pioneer Pride,
Levi Collins

Parent Notes

Bring geography to life with fun and educational activities

Learning about geography can make the entire world more relevant to your child. To get him thinking a little bit more about geography, have your child:

- Draw a map of how to get from your house to school, the grocery store or a friend's house. Then follow the map together.
- Walk outside and identify north, south, east and west, as well as northeast, northwest, southeast and southwest. Challenge him to describe where things in your town are located. "My school is northeast of my house." "The library is south of the fire station."
- Go through your house and talk about where various items came from. Look for labels to see where things were made. A calculator may have come from Taiwan. A box of cereal may have a Battle Creek, Michigan or Chicago, Illinois address. Locate them on a map.
- Look for street patterns. In some towns, streets run north and south, while avenues run east and west. Or, street names may be alphabetical. Help your child recognize the patterns.
- Start a collection of objects from countries around the world. Stamps, postcards and coins are all easy items to collect, categorize and store.

Learn more about where his ancestors came from. Find these places on a map. If possible, help him learn about the routes his ancestors traveled when they came to this country. Where do your relatives live now? Again, check the map

These strategies can help your middle schooler retain learning

It can be challenging for students to remember what they have learned. That's because the human brain is wired to forget.

To help your middle schooler remember what he studies:

- Be sure he understands what he's studying. It's tough to memorize something if you don't know what it means in the first place.
- Set it to music. Encourage your child to make up a tune or simple rhyme to remember names, dates or math formulas.
- Surround him with the material. Is he studying a certain history topic? Find books, movies and songs about that topic, too.
- Try visualization. Get your child to associate the thing he's trying to memorize with a mental image. Have him close his eyes and picture what he is studying. A picture really is worth a thousand words.
- Make it personal. Ask your child to explain the topic he's studying to you. Just putting it into his own words may help the concepts stick in his mind.
- Be thorough. Remind your child to read through all of his notes when he's studying. Afterward, he can go back and try to recall and restate the information.
- Sleep on it. The brain processes and stores information while people sleep. Suggest that your child review essential information just before he goes to sleep.

Develop family habits that support your teen's learning

The idea of "reinforcing learning" can be tricky when you are the parent of a high school student. You may not feel that you remember or know enough about what your teen is learning to reinforce it.

That's OK. Parents can support learning by creating everyday opportunities that make it possible. Here's how:

- Talk about the jobs people hold whenever you visit a business with your teen. Discuss the education needed for such a job, but keep the conversation casual. Do not turn the occasion into a lecture.
- Plan some family projects that involve math skills, such as painting a room or cooking a meal. Get your teen involved.
- Encourage your teen to research and explore. Ask him to help you pick out something your family needs or to find a new place for your family to visit.
- Let your teen know that you are interested in anything new he learns at school. Ask him to explain those concepts to you.
- Encourage your teen's talents, even if they are not what you would have wished for him. Remember, these talents may become the foundation of his future career.
- Ask for your teen's opinions. Teens are usually aware of major current events and have given them some thought. Make sure he knows that you value his opinion—whether you agree with it or not.

All State Music

WE HAVE AN ALL STATE MUSICIAN!!

Liam Adams, a senior at Ten Sleep High School, earned his place for the second year at the 2020 All State Music Conference as one of the top six trumpet players in the state of Wyoming! This is a once a year event in which only the top musicians in the state are chosen to perform at a single Gala Concert in the middle of January. Every high school student from grades 9 thru 12 are allowed to compete for a spot. It is the culmination of work done over the course of five months (September to January) in which the students learn a set of audition materials that test their knowledge and ability to play both technically as well as artistically. The process begins in early September when they find out what the audition material entails. It follows up in November with a blind, taped audition at a specified site for the region. The auditions (1600+ for this year from all over the state) are then sent to judges who comb through them and find the very best for three groups: Concert Band, Concert Choir and Symphony Orchestra. Only 374 students made the cut for these groups this year. This is a similar process to the blind auditions professional musicians are subjected to in order to gain employment. Once chosen, the top musicians are divided up into their respective groups (band and orchestral wind and percussion players have the same audition) and then sent music often performed by professionals to learn over the next six weeks with their home directors. So, "what is the reward for winning in music?" you may ask. More work with challenge at a higher level of difficulty! The competition is to get there. After that, it is all about collaborating with others to achieve something truly spectacular! From January 19th to the 21st, the students were given instruction by directors from colleges and universities from around the country and were able to listen to and speak with professional musician performers (the Dallas String Quartet for example) to gain more insight and understanding of their musical craft.

On the night of January 21, 2020 the students then performed in their three groups for a total of two and a half hours of music. It was during this time that our own Wyoming Teacher of the Year, Dane Weaver, pointed out a very interesting fact that immediately prompted more research. Not only was Liam Adams the only student from a 1A school performing in the band, he was the only instrumentalist from a 1A school who made the cut to be considered one of the best musicians in the state of Wyoming! It was truly a night to remember with stunning performances from All State Orchestra, Choir and Band.

Congratulations Liam Adams! We are proud to have you represent us as a Ten Sleep High School musician!

Vocational Education News

A new year and a new semester. It's always good to start fresh again. The students in my classes are already off and running on a productive path. They are making progress on a variety of metal projects, and log furniture projects. I am excited to see the finished product of what they produce.

My computer classes have completed HTML and CSS coding and are working on building Games through code. The students really enjoy coding and are very good at it. They have all developed the skills to be able to build a basic website with style and soon they will be able to share the games they create. I can see the computer science classes will continue to grow at Ten Sleep and students will be able to develop the necessary skill set to compete in the world of technology. This will open so many doors for their future and I am excited to see the progress.

My business and exploratory class is working on the understanding of real world budgets and how to be responsible consumers economically, while the construction class has been working on specialty concrete projects and will soon move to shed construction. It's been a great year and I look for more great things to come.

Mr. Zollman

SPECIALIZED SUPPORT TO HELP TEENS QUIT VAPING

Wyoming teens who want to stop using tobacco products, including electronic cigarettes and other vaping devices, are encouraged to enroll in a free program, My Life, My Quit, recently made available through the Wyoming Department of Health (WDH).

According to the 2018 Prevention Needs Assessment, 36% of Wyoming high school students and 11% of Wyoming middle school students reported they currently vape.

Most vaping products contain nicotine, an addictive chemical also found in other tobacco products. Nicotine has known health effects on youth, as their brains are still developing. Youth who vape may experience difficulty with attention, mood, impulse control and learning. Once teens start vaping, it may be difficult for them to quit on their own.

My Life, My Quit provides youth access to tailored resources for quitting, including:

- Free and confidential help from a Quit Coach, specially trained to listen to teens, to help them navigate social situations that involve tobacco or vaping, and find healthy ways to cope with stress.
- Teen-focused messages in promotional and educational materials – created with youth input – that encourage teens to quit vaping or using tobacco.
- Five coaching sessions via live text messaging or by phone on a dedicated toll-free number (1-855-891-9989) or online chat.
- Simplified online and mobile program registration to get teens to a coach more quickly.
- On-going text messages for encouragement throughout the quit process.
- Certificate of program completion.

The online program can be accessed at mylifemyquit.com

For adults who want to quit using tobacco, the WDH continues to offer help through the Wyoming Quit Tobacco Program (WQTP). Interested residents may call 1-800-QUIT NOW or visit quitwyo.org online. In addition to free nicotine replacement therapy and Chantix, free phone or online support is available.
